O'Connor usually doesn't confirm his availability on the group chat until you message him directly - it makes him feel extra special that way - but as soon as he arrived back on the Coast on Sunday, the day after the Ourimbah game, he was already confirming he was "IN" for the Kanwal-1 game. Now, was it this out-of-the-ordinary behaviour or the fact that McGarvey suggested Kanwal might forfeit that actually jinxed this into happening? Probably best to blame a combined "Michael" effort. Yes by Thursday afternoon we'd received word that our planned opponents this weekend had forfeited. It also meant that despite having two Kanwal teams in our competition, we'd go through the regular season without playing either. So rude! Julia had already made additions to her strapping bag for a new victim, erm, client ... Nigel Mead. Back from suspension, she'd loaded more tape to stop his mouth getting him into more trouble. He did claim he'd only make the second half due to an "urgent dentist appointment". We're not sure if this was to avoid Julia or not. It was just lucky Nige didn't attend the next Premier League game or he would have heard a new swear word ... "cheeseburger!". Also, planning his return for his seemingly elusive 20th game, Neale was ready! Or maybe to tease him a bit longer, he wasn't actually on the teamsheet. He did however turn up to ADO on Thursday night to test his quads in a training session with Luca ... at the pub.

So there it was, no trip up to Kanwal this weekend, well expect for Rob who didn't read the chat group and turned up. The announcement probably got lost amongst all the jokes Geoff had shared but hey Rob that's your fault, you started that, Mister Fairy Bread!! To keep up with the exercise, some of the boys filled in for the Over 45s. Paul Ashton put away a nice goal for them whilst Boz stuffed up a couple of chances, both would've been beautiful assists by Andy of course!! O'Connor, who failed to get a fake ID to play 45s, meanwhile helped the 35DS side. One night, a couple of months back, he spoke to a few of the Premier League Squad at Hotel Gosford and told them he plays in Kenno's side. They replied, "he's a legend". Wrong Kenno mate! Anyway, now he can say he has.

Oh, did I mention that with a 4-0 victory and another 3 points on the board, we are now officially League Champions? No? WE ARE LEAGUE CHAMPIONS! Talk of finals soon erupted on the chat group. Despite busily writing fan fiction for 'How to Train Your Dragon', Timmy Cohen had time to share a rumour that the finals season would be cut short to simply a 1 v 2 Grand Final. We're not sure of the source of his intel but we suspect it's from his Dungeons & Dragons mate who told him back in Round 3 that our competition would be regraded, and we'd have a Gosford DRAGONS team in our comp, relegated from the C's. There are two things to learn here kids, Drugs are bad and Dragons aren't real! The finals draw was released by the end of that week and yes there are Semi Finals. Sorry, Tim's mate. At this stage, three possible teams could be our fourth placed opponents: The Entrance, Kanwal-2 (so who knows we might face a Bulls team after all), or Ourimbah.

Training night with a couple of drinks for Luca, Neale ... and erm, Geoff.

AROUND THE GROUNDS: WEEK 16

This round saw Wyoming-1 wrap up the League Championship and sealed Finals spots for Gwandalan (a big win over Doyalson) and The Entrance (defeating Wyoming-2 in a closer affair than the scoreline reflected). Ourimbah's shock loss to Mountains saw their chances of returning to the Top 4 slimming. They've now lost four on the trot. Kanwal-2 meanwhile had their sixth straight victory to jump 5pts in front of the Falcons.

AROUND THE GROUNDS: WEEK 17

A catch-up round for the six teams who didn't play the Week 4 weekend back in Mid-May. Gwandalan wrapped up 2nd spot with a 2-0 victory over Ourimbah but it meant the Falcons have now bowed out of the finals race. Five rounds ago they were equal 2nd but five straight losses see them cemented in 5th spot. Wyoming-2, depleted on troops, were forced to forfeit for the third time this season.
