THE END OF THE MID-SEASON HIATUS

After a wash-out and a scheduled weekend off, the three-week long mid-season hiatus was finally over! The time between drinks showed too: Scott's beard had grown an inch longer; Brad was no longer walking around like a hunchback; the Luca limp had gone; and Fordo had forgotten his teammate's names (then again, the latter would've happened over a mere 7-day period anyway). Bateau Bay was the venue for the reunion but sadly not a victorious one as Killarney found the net early in both halves. The Tigers tried hard but lacked the quality in the middle of the park today to ever be a chance. A disappointing and frustrating game but still plenty of time to climb the ladder for that coveted top four spot

THE RAIN DANCE

Friday night, June 1st. Six days since our loss to Kanwal. Meady had sent out a text to ascertain numbers for the following day's game against East Gosford. It wasn't looking good. Scott (work commitments or gentleman's agreement against the Rams? - we weren't sure); Steve G & Ross (also work); Brad & Luca (injury); and Tony (family commitments) were all out. That left 12 men. Meady asked all to pray overnight for rain but to speed it along, he performed a nude rain dance (Ngari refused to photograph this for the Chronicles) on the fields of Alan Davidson that evening. He over did it !! The rain tumbled down dramatically washing out all Central Coast and Sydney grounds for the entire weekend. Meady is still getting angry phone calls from residents all the way from Collaroy...

Two weeks later, the numbers were slightly improved - 14. Mark, Tony (both family commitments) and Ross (work) would not in attendance for the Killarney game and poor Luca was forced to watch again from the sideline as he waits for his calf to heal. Unshaven and disheveled, Luca personified a man suffering withdrawals from his football. Until that Saturday afternoon, he wasn't so alone. Whilst some filled the three-week void by coaching and/or - in Scott's case - playing for the A's (an impressive performance that continues to instill fear that he'll be poached), others almost suffered as bad as Luca. Flanno copped it badly as he was checked into rehab over withdrawals of not being shown yellow cards. Upon returning home, his kids kindly carded him at every chance they could to make him feel at ease. Dave wore his headgear to work to delude himself. Gregg started leaving his bag at various grounds and then ran across the fields to retrieve them, sliding here and there with wee abandon. Stevie G refused to let the plush tiger that shares his namesake out of his arms for the duration. It got a bit creepy at times but at least he got a much needed shower !! ...

HIGHLIGHTS

Highlights included: Aaron making several great saves; Dave not only getting a few headers in but putting in some solid crosses too; Meady's rant to the keeper that he needed his glasses; Flanno's early cross; Chris's ducking and weaving through the midfield; the backs pulling off some optimistic offside calls; and last but not least, Fordo's clearance. He was facing towards his own goalmouth when he made a drastic lunge for the ball lurking dangerously inside the 6-yard box. He got a foot to it and managed to clear it wide. Aaron was certain for a moment that Fordo was about to net an own goal but others had more faith. He had after all revealed that the new boots he'd been wearing all certain had not scored one goal, so we were in safe hands, or feet rather.

PERFORMANCE ENCHANCEMENT ?

Prior to kick off, officials were concerned of the sight of Wyoming players circled around a small container, their grubby hands reaching in and removing small red particulars and subsequently consuming them. Were they merely red frog confectionary or a performance enhancing substance ... 80 minutes of game time later, they had their answer, they were clearly not performance enhancing!!

They didn't help preventing Killarney from scoring goals ...

They didn't help Andy's free kick ...

THE MEAD MACHINE

Fordo picked up his first dirty shirts points and what a way to get on the board using Edsacc Oval as his own swimming pool; Andy got more than just man-flu snot on his jersey, mixing it up with a decent dose of mud; and Chris showed that now that he's a year older he's more likely to fall down, picking up his first point.

WEEK 10 WRAP-UP

The time off didn't diminish the form of competition leaders with the top three all having solid wins. Wyong had their first victory since Week 6, smashing Woongarrah 4-0. Budgewoi also put on four goals against East Gosford. Kanwal though had to settle for a point, unable to score against last-placed Tuggerah and therefore failed to increase the buffer from 5th spot.

WEEK 11 PREVIEW

Wyoming will be hoping Wyong's winning form continues against Kanwal. If so and the Tigers manage a win against the Wildcats, they will reduce the gap from fourth to 2pts. Killarney will need to defeat the Rams to stay in sight of 2nd spot ... and it's first versus last when Budgewoi take on Tuggerah.
